"After the War!" About everything has been attributed to the "After the War Effect," so why not smile and say the most recent happening here is chargeable to "the war." Portsmouth has the finest restaurants, the best theatres, the best stores, the best people on earth. So why worry.

INTERNAL REVENUE AGENTS MAKE ARRESTS AT 12.01

Pig Squad of Agents Sweep Over City Today

(By Associated Press)
New York, Jan. 17.—Four minutes after the 18th amendment became effective in New York this morning at 12.05 to be exact, a Brooklyn cafe owner was arrested by an internal revenue inspector for selling a glass of brandy. A bartender in the same establishment was arrested a minute later. This news traveled in underground channels faster than a prairie fire fanned by a cyclone and in a short time the merry-making over the demise of John Barleycorn came to a more or less abrupt end in the cafes, restaurants and hotels. The presence of 100 revenue

Admiral Sims Creates Sensation--His Instructions Said "Just Soon Fight England As Central Powers"

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Jan. 17.—Rear Admiral Sims told the Senate committee investigating Naval awards today that when he was ordered to England in March, 1917, just before the United States entered the war, he was instructed by the Navy Department "not to let the British pull the wool over your eyes," and that "we would just as soon fight the British as the Central Powers." Admiral Sims' letter to Daniels, "Some criticisms and short-comings of the administration and the naval force," was read at the hearing. The Admiral also charged that American naval headquarters in London did not receive cooperation from the Navy Dept. and that the Department did not arrive at any decided plan of action until ten months after he arrived in London. He added that "it was ten months before we really gave our aid to the Allies or acted on their recommendation."

SOUVET ARK BUFORD ARRIVES AT FINLAND

(By Associated Press)
Hango, Finland, Friday, Jan. 16.—The U. S. Army transport Buford, having on board 249 radicals, deported from America, arrived here at 3.00 this afternoon. Finnish pilots could not dock the vessel and a German pilot was summoned. The Reds on board the Buford will be taken to the Russian frontier by U. S. Labor Bureau and Immigration officials. Alexander Berkman and Emma Goldman who have been considered the leaders of deportees have declared they will not remain in Russia but will "return to America to save it." After the Buford had been docked Berkman and Miss Goldman led a procession of radicals down the gang plank. A large number of persons assembled at the wharf gazing curiously at the landing. The Reds made up a motley throng, their faces being full of curiosity as to what their future might be while there were traces of anxiety lest they might be attacked after they had left the protection of their American guardians. After they had landed, Berkman and Miss Goldman talked willingly with newspaper men. Asked to give his opinion of her deportation, the latter replied, "It was melodrama to keep it secret." "It was unfair and stupid," interjected Berkman. "You cannot kill an idea like that. The Chair tried and failed. He is dead and forgotten." "Do you want to overthrow the American government," Miss Goldman was asked. "You need a new government," she answered, "and I hope the election will provide it." It is her intention to return to America as soon as possible she said. Asked what her immediate plans were, she replied "I shall not impose my advice upon the Russian government, but shall remain affiliated with the Bolsheviks. I hold my deportation was an injustice. We were not given a chance to prepare for it."

THREE MONTHS AT COUNTY FARM

Court Sentences Boston Newspaper Agents--Appeal Taken--First Legal Battle On in Local Police Court

In police court this morning Harry Winebaum, local agent of the Boston American and Harry Caplan a Boston newsboy, were arraigned before Judge Ernest L. Quigley on the warrants charging them with circulating libelous matter. John L. Mitchell appeared for Mayor Hirsch and Samuel W. Emery for the men. Police officer Michael Kelly and Volney C. Budger testified as to the true character of the Seattle Temple as did other officers. There was quite a crowd of spectators and quite a number of arguments took place. After hearing the evidence the Judge sentenced Winebaum to 3 months at the County Farm on one complaint, and held him for the grand jury on another. Caplan was given a sentence of three months at the County Farm. Through their attorneys they appealed and bail was furnished and they were released. In the sum of $300.00.

JUDGE ORDERS DEER IS. INMATE RELEASED

(By Associated Press)
Boston, Jan. 17.—Federal Judge Anderson today ordered the release of Peter Frank, of Swampscott, who was held at Deer Island as a radical subject to deportation. "I find that Frank is a citizen of the United States and is held without warrant," the court said. The case came before the court on habeas corpus proceedings, the first to be instituted in behalf of the 400 persons detained at Deer Island.

500 CASES OF WHISKEY SEIZED

N. Y. Custom House Packed With Wet Goods.

(By Associated Press)
New York, Jan. 17.—Five hundred cases of confiscated whiskey piled on the sidewalk in front of the Custom House and under guard helped convince New Yorkers that there was an official determination to enforce prohibition. The whiskey had been taken from bonded warehouses for export prior to the time the amendment became effective and its seizure began soon after midnight. Twelve warrants were issued for arrests in connection with the seizures. There was an official suspicion that there had been no intention on the part of the owners to export some of it, at least.

COLLEGES FAVOR COMPROMISE ON TREATY

The lead is by a small margin over those who would ratify the treaty without ratification. The referendum was voted upon by 410 colleges and universities, and 139,758 votes were cast. They were as follows:

Compromise between the Lodge reservations and the democrats 49,653.
Ratification without reservations 45,332.

Opposed to the treaty in any form 13,933.

ALLIES TO FURNISH RUSSIA WITH GOODS

(By Associated Press)
Paris, Jan. 16.—In an official communication issued here this evening the Supreme Council approved of the recommendations to relieve the population of the interior of Russia by giving them medicine, agricultural implements and such other things of which they are in sore need, in exchange of other commodities, such as grain and flax.

This partial lifting of the blockade against the Russians in an exchange of goods on the basis of reciprocity between the people of Russia and the allies and neutrals thru cooperative societies. This does not however imply any change in the policy of the allies toward the Soviet government of Russia.

HUSBAND SHOT WIFE IN NEWBURYPORT

Newburyport, Jan. 16.—Mrs. John Hickey, 27, is on the danger list at the Anna Jaques Hospital, as a result of an assault alleged to have been made by her husband, Samuel Hickey, 33, at the boarding house of Mike Penas, 11 Smiths street, last night.

The police say that, following a dispute about some furniture and other matters, Hickey struck his wife on the head with a club, believed to have been a broom handle, and then fired the weapon from a revolver. One bullet passed through her chest and came out at the back of her neck, another plowed a channel at the side of her head, and the third went wild, passing through a partition and being found in a closet.

The assassin, the police say, had threatened to kill his wife and then committed suicide. Following the shooting, he disappeared. Street railroad men say that a Polisher answering his description boarded a Haverhill-bound car. The police of surrounding cities have been given a description of Hickey and asked to apprehend him.

Mr. and Mrs. Hickey had been living apart and the former had returned from Bridgeport, Conn., about five weeks ago. They were both boarding at the Smiths of house when the shooting occurred. They are mill operators and have four children, which are said to be in institutions around Boston.

BOLSHEVIKI IDEA IN BERLIN

(By Associated Press)
Berlin, Jan. 16.—The Bolsheviki idea that the other fellow ought to be compelled to share his property even if one must resort to theft to obtain it seems to animate some of Berlin's thieves. Two sisters, servants of a well-to-do family in Hanover, who recently stole 100,000 marks worth of valuables from their employers declared, when arrested, that they felt it was perfectly right under the new order of things to take a share of the property of those better situated.

DRIVE FOR SMITH COLLEGE BEGINS HERE TODAY

The drive for the Smith College $1,000,000 fund will start today when there will be a meeting and tea this afternoon at the home of Miss Martha S. Kimball at her home on South street. Miss Kimball is a member of the state executive committee, and will be active in the drive. This will begin today and it is expected to be completed on Feb. 24 when there will be a meeting of the Alumnae council at North Hampton.

Miss Bertha C. Folsom, '03, Manchester, is chairman for the State of New Hampshire. Miss Marjorie Chandler, '13, Manchester, is vice-chairman, and local chairmen are as follows:

Mrs. C. B. Clough, Lebanon; Miss Sara Conklin, Concord; Mrs. Frederick S. Meeker, Somersworth; Miss Mary A. Pigott, Franklin; Miss Martha S. Kimball, Portsmouth; Miss Helen H. Norwell, Nashua; Miss Mary S. Titto, Laconia; Miss Lucy P. Kingsbury, Keegan; Miss Ellen L. Westworth, Exeter; Miss Sarah C. Holton, Manchester. Several other chairmen are yet to be appointed. There is also a Men's Committee.

Various educational authorities point out that conditions that have developed in the last ten years afford women far greater opportunities for service than at any other time in the world's history. Such opportunities, they say, require a wider and more thorough education. With the arming of suffrage women have been brought face to face with problems of statesmanship. The war called women from their homes into greater social, business, industrial and professional activities and gave them responsibilities from which they cannot and must not withdraw.

Girls of today must be trained for more varied work than has been the case in the past. The new conditions that have developed impose new problems upon the women's educational institutions of today and of the future. These conditions make it necessary for the women's colleges to be better equipped; and while these colleges must assume new obligations they are already struggling under additional burdens imposed by the remarkable economic development of the last five years.

The changed commercial, industrial and financial conditions have brought about a rise in the cost of maintenance of the institutions and have decreased the purchasing power of the endowments which these institutions possess. In all these women's colleges there is an increasing need for funds to meet the new expenses, to provide additional equipment and to pay larger salaries to the teaching staff.

The immediate needs of Smith College are classified as follows: An endowment for increase of salaries, $1,500,000; dormitories furnishing an income also to be applied to professors' salaries, $1,500,000; endowment for the library, $200,000; gymnasium and swimming pool, $200,000; music building and auditorium, $250,000; building for physics, geology and mental science laboratory, $200,000; and an endowment fund for maintenance of buildings, $100,000.

As the chief source of funds is the graduate and former student, the first effort of the chairmen above named will be to collect the subscriptions of the alumnae and it is confidently expected that 100 percent will contribute to the fund. Experience gained in the work to support the Smith College Inter Unit has perfected the organization of the campaign and rendered the present task easier.

Those directing the campaign are confident that the appeal of Smith will touch the hearts of the public as well as the graduates of the college.

The Work Must Be Done.

Following the excitement attending the recent round-up and deportation of dangerous radicals there is arising a protest against the danger of going too far and really interfering with rights that are guaranteed under the law. Some very eminent men have raised their voices against what they consider a grave danger, and no one will deny that the work in hand calls for judgment and freedom from hysteria as well as for determination and firmness. The real "Reds" must be suppressed and placed beyond the power of menacing the country and its institutions, but in doing this there should be reasonable care in protecting the innocent from suffering and guarding the country against the suspicion of liability to go off at half-cock.

At a meeting in Boston a few nights ago Judge George W. Anderson of the United States District Court stated his conviction that the menace of radicals, alien and domestic, is not so great as many imagine. He emphasized the right of free speech and the necessity of making real democracy safe for America. At the same meeting other prominent men spoke in a similar vein.

It may be well that warning should be uttered against the danger of overdoing the important work in hand. So far as it is possible to avoid it the innocent must not be made to suffer, but the guilty must be apprehended and deprived of their power for evil, and those who are found in their company while this work is in progress will have no right to complain if they are put to some inconvenience.

The talk about "free speech" as if that right, in the proper sense of the term, had been denied to any one at any time is becoming tiresome, no matter from what source it may emanate. Everybody knows that the right of free speech is and always has been sacred in this country. And it is a right that has been shamefully abused. Parades under the red flag have been permitted together with the preaching and publication of the doctrines of anarchy until the time has come when the danger is recognized and the people are determined to put an end to it, as should have been done long ago.

What is needed for the work in hand is firmness and judgment, and the absence of everything resembling excitement and hysteria. As this paper has repeatedly asserted, the government is in no danger of overthrow. There are dangerous elements here and it is the duty of the government to put them beyond the power for mischief. That is what it has resolved to do, and it will be done before the campaign ends, no matter how long it may take or how much it may cost.

Any intimation that there is, has been or will be the least interference with free speech or the right of assembly, regarded in their proper sense, is empty twaddle. There is no question of the right to criticize the government, its officials or its policies. Free speech, a free press and a free ballot are the weapons with which the people of this country must fight their battles, and these are denied to none so long as they are properly used. But in certain quarters their abuse has gone beyond the bounds of toleration and the time has come to call a halt.

The town of Greenland has decided to erect a $25,000 building to be used as a schoolhouse and assembly hall. It will stand on the site of the town hall that was recently burned and will be a substantial stone structure with a capacity adequate to the needs of the town. Other plans were offered, but the voters have evidently made a wise decision.

The only representation the United States will have in the first meeting of the Council of the League of Nations will be in the call therefor, which was issued by President Wilson. And that will be representation of no mean order.

Mr. Bryan's hat is not yet in the ring, but there are many who cannot escape the conviction that he is gradually elbowing his way to the ring-side.

The government will care for the dependents of deported aliens until the time comes for them to "go home." This should prove to the anarchists themselves that this is not so bad a country as they have represented it to be.

Coolidge headquarters have been opened in Washington, but they will not be able to bait New Hampshire out of the Wood.

It is said that tar washed from the highways is killing the fish in many New England streams. One more "problem to be solved."

There is perhaps no place in the world where an earthquake would cause less of a sensation than in Mexico. That country is used to shake-ups.

More "internationalism." It looks now as if the Dempsey-Carpentier fight might not be held in this country, after all.

Sleighting in many parts of New England makes the season seem more seasonable.

DU PONT'S
PERFECT NEW
ANAESTHETIC

Kills Pain, But Leaves Patient Conscious.

Wilmington, Del. Jan. 16.—Development of a new anesthetic, which eliminates pain without loss of consciousness and produces virtually no nausea, was announced here today by E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. The discovery, it was said, would permit elimination of pain not only in obstetrical cases and dressing of wounds, but in dentistry.

The anesthetic was described as "a new type of ether—highly refined and modified by addition of certain gases which give it these new and desirable characteristics."

"Its ability to produce insensibility to pain without loss of consciousness opens up an entirely new field of usefulness, including the large class of operations which are now performed without any attempt whatever to eliminate pain," said the company's announcement.

"The most common of these are in dentistry where the new ether will render painless such operations as nerve treating, removal of roots and drilling, and filling of teeth, and in obstetrical cases where only a small amount of ether is required to relieve the pain."

"It is also especially suited to relieving suffering in such painful practices as sewing of wounds, opening and treatment of abscesses and changing of packings and dressings. Tests which have been conducted with the new ether at various hospitals and clinics have demonstrated that it is thoroughly practical and that its use is followed by no undesirable effects."

SEN. THOMAS
ON PROHIBITION

He Gave Brilliant Address Before N. Y. Bar.

(By Associated Press)
New York, Jan. 16.—The prohibition amendment to the constitution challenges the integrity of the states, Senator Thomas of Colorado argued tonight before the New York State Bar Association. It embodies, he declared, a revolution in the constitutional scheme of government possibly destined to prove as far reaching in its political consequences as the civil war which challenged the integrity of the Union.

"If by observing the formulas provided for by amending the constitution," Mr. Thomas said, "the subject embraced in the eighteenth amendment may be permanently embodied in it, so may every other object be, without regard to the original division of powers."

With this warning of what might result the senator urged that the nation and states would be preserved, each in its proper sphere by insistence that all public authorities observe the limitations imposed by the constitution and that all citizens should be Americans first and democrats, republicans or independents afterward.

Beginning with an analysis of the original powers of the federal and state governments, Senator Thomas traced the growth of the national administration in undermining and nullifying.

"Many of them," he said "have been undertaken with the approval of by the invitation of the states, which thereby surrender their prerogatives to the congress, thus avoiding the expense and the effort required for their exercise. The federal treasury has become the agency for this transposition of power, with appropriations as the watchword and diminishing local government as the consequence. This condition is not creditable either to American spirit or American patriotism, but it exists and is progressive. So general has it become that the measure and the limit of legislative authority seems to be the will of discretion of congress."

"But the people have recently made a radical departure from legislative to constitutional enforcement. The event is embodied in the eighteenth amendment, quite as important and possibly destined to prove as far-reaching in its political consequences as the war between the sections. Now as then, the nation is disturbed if not controlled by its association with a great moral, social and economic problem, which arouses passion by appealing to the emotions, which divides public sentiment and directs attention from the major issue to itself. The issue should be distinguished from the cause which has advanced it, if we are to appreciate its magnitude. The extinction of the liquor traffic is not the issue, but the incident to it. The latter involves the repudiation of a fundamental principle of the constitution whose overthrow the states may not ultimately survive."

THUMB-NAIL SKETCHES OF PERSONS YOU
OUGHT TO KNOWCHAPLAIN CHARLETON,
U. S. N.

Chaplain Charles M. Charlton, U. S. N., senior chaplain of this naval district, and senior chaplain and morale officer of the Portsmouth naval station, by his good executive ability is doing excellent work at this navy yard and is a popular officer. Chaplain Charlton was born in Maynard, Mass., in 1877, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Edmund Charlton. He studied at Wesleyan Academy, Williamstown, Mass., and later became a student at Boston University, from which institution of learning he received the degree of S. T. D., in 1908. He was graduated from the Boston Theological School. He was married Jan. 17, 1904, his bride being Miss Lucia Sarah Chamberlain of Cambridge, Mass. He was ordained by Bishop McLean as deacon and Bishop Crockett as priest in the Vermont Methodist Conference, continuing for three years. He was then appointed by President Roosevelt as U. S. Naval Chaplain in 1901. He served in the Philippines and on Asiatic stations, at the Naval Station at Newport, R. I.; on the U. S. S. Georgia, at the navy yard at Norfolk, Va., and Boston, and on the U. S. S. Nebraska, having been around the world more than three times. Chaplain Charlton did able work in the service on the battlefields during the war, he being senior American chaplain on duty in France and was with the marines in four of the large battles, including Belleau Woods. Chaplain Charlton came to the Portsmouth Navy Yard for duty on May 30, 1919, and is No. 6 on the list of naval chaplains. His family consists of a wife, two daughters and a son.

of national prohibition, and I am very much in sympathy with its purposes and can testify to its social, moral, and economic value in the states which have accepted it, the eighteenth amendment not only changes but revolutionizes the original structure of the government. It enlarges upon the reserve powers of the states, and of the rights of the people thereof under state constitutions and laws, and equips the national government with power to enforce laws for its enforcement in every quarter of the national domain. It substitutes the national for the state courts, the federal for the state jury in all that pertains to the manufacture, distribution or consumption of alcoholic beverages. It does this in states which have rejected as well as in those which have accepted the amendment.

"It must be conceded that the subject directly concerns the conduct and environment of the individual. It is therefore foreign to the supervising power of the national authority as originally outlined."

"And since no measure can become a law without the affirmative vote of a majority of states in the senate, since the President may be chosen by the electoral college although it is a majority of the popular vote he cast against him, since laws are readily demanded may be declared invalid by the judicial authority as in conflict with organic limitations, since property may not be taken but for a public purpose and then only by making due compensation, we may be sure that many new amendments, some of them already introduced and published will be proposed for the removal or modification of such objectionable constitutional restrictions. These will find support in congress and in the state legislatures in proportion to the strength of the electorate behind them. And the campaign against the nullification of the constitution, the march against the principle of representative government will be fairly on."

"The sovereignty of the state is declining. It may be further denuded although loudly protesting. Once it is finally decreed that the integrity of the states may be assailed, even under the prescribed forms of constitutional amendment, only the virtue, the wisdom and the experience of the people will safeguard the evidence our fathers reared to preserve their own and the liberties of posterity."

"Not on Her Account"
(From the London Morning Post)
A little girl had a favorite bantam, her very own. Wicked brothers tried to teach it the elements of cock-fighting, and incurred dire wrath. In consequence, at her prayer-time that night their names were studiously omitted from among those on whom she asked blessings. But, being a reasonable little girl, on being remonstrated with she consented to restate them in her petition. Clapping hands once more, and tightly shutting eyes, she made her prayer, "Please bless my brothers too," to which, after a pause, a rider was added, spoken in grown-up voice, "But pray don't do it on my account."

Cincinnati, Jan. 17.—Three firemen were killed and a score or more persons injured when an explosion blew out the east wall of a building occupied by the Newton Tea & Spice Co. in the river front district here early today. The building, which was destroyed, adjoined the suspension bridge spanning the Ohio river between Cincinnati and Covington, Kentucky. The fire loss was reported as approximately $100,000.

Two more firemen died, later and three others were reported seriously injured.

MAJ. POWERS IS A SON OF PORTSMOUTH

An Interesting 40 Years' Service in the U. S. Army.

Major Philip Powers, U. S. A., who retired as a major at the end of his life this month, after completing 40 years of service in the U. S. Army, is a well known son of Portsmouth and was born in this city Jan. 16, 1882. He made his home here until the year 1897.

He worked in Boston, Mass., at Hotel New Hampshire, which was conducted by a Portsmouth man. After this hotel was discontinued was employed at the Hotel "New Marlboro." While at the latter place another Portsmouth boy suggested the idea of enlisting in the U. S. Army. Up to this time I had no knowledge that such an organization as an U. S. Army existed, always having the impression that the "Navy" was the whole thing. At all events we (my friend and I) presented ourselves at the Army Recruiting Station in Boston, but my companion got cold feet and refused to enlist. I was enlisted with three others on December 2, 1897 and forwarded to the Depot at David's Island, N. Y. Remained there about three weeks and then sent to Atlanta, Ga., and assigned to Battery "D," 5th Artillery. In February 1898 the Battery was sent to Key West Barracks, Fla. Was with detachment sent to Dry Tortugas, Fla. In May 1898 the Battery was sent to Fort Brooks, Tampa, Fla., on account of yellow fever. Left this place November 30, 1898, arriving in New York City December 7, 1898 and assigned to Fort Schuyler, N. Y. Left September 7, 1899 for Fort Omaha, Neb., at which place I was discharged December 1, 1899 by expiration of term of enlistment.

Was in Chicago, Ill., until about December 14, 1899, when I decided to re-enlist, but was undecided where. I finally concluded to go to Little Rock, Ark., and applied at that place December 17th, 1899 and enlisted on that day in Battery "E," 2d Artillery. Battery was changed to New Orleans, La., in 1898 and the following year to Fort Preble, Portland, Me. I remained at Fort Preble, Me., until January 23, 1899, when I was appointed an Ordnance Sergeant, U. S. Army, and sent to take charge of the ungarrisoned post, Fort Macao, N. C. I remained there until transferred to Fort Niagara, N. Y., in December 1899. While there volunteer regiments were authorized to be organized for Philippine service and I applied for a commission in one of the regiments so organized. I had no idea that favorable action would be taken on my application, but my name appeared with others in the N. Y. Herald, as a 1st Lieut. of volunteers. As soon as I regularly notified, Sept. 3, 1899, I applied for a furlough as Ordnance Sergeant, not desiring to give up a certainty for a uncertainty. The furlough was granted and on muster out of regiment, June 27, 1901, I reverted to duty as Ordnance Sergeant at Fort Niagara, N. Y., arriving there July 4, 1901. On September 13, 1901 I was appointed 1st Lieut. of the regular establishment and assigned to the 21st Infantry. I served with that regiment in California, North Dakota, Montana, Colorado and two tours in the Philippines. While in that regiment also served in Leavenworth, Kansas, and Milwaukee, Wis.

While in Philippines, January 1902, I was transferred to the 8th Infantry, returned to the United States in September 1902 and transferred to the 11th Infantry, Fort D. A. Russell, N. Y., and in February 1903 the regiment was sent to Texas City, Texas; regiment went to Naco and Douglas, Arizona, December 1904. Transferred to 27th Infantry August 1, 1905 and joined same at Texas City, Tex. Sailed from Galveston, Texas, for the Philippines via Panama Canal, September 29, 1905, arrived at Colon, Panama October 5, 1905, and delayed in capital zone for four months on account of the slides. Left Manila for the Philippines on January 25, 1906, arriving in Philippines March 5, 1906. Left Manila for United States November 18, 1907, arriving in San Francisco, Cal., December 18, 1907. Assigned to Camp Funston, Kan., January 1, 1908; left Camp Funston August 29, 1908, arriving at Camp Mills, N. Y., September 4, 1908. On same day right wrist was broken and I was obliged to go to a hospital for treatment. The regiment of which I formed a part sailed for France September 9, 1908, but I remained in hospital until November 4th, 1908; was then ordered to Hoboken, N. J., with a view of sailing for Europe. Was on transport under orders when Amputee was signed and all combat troops were taken from ship. I was then sent to Camp Dix, N. J., and left that place for recruiting duty at Portland, Me., February 21, 1909.

Completed 10 years service December 16, 1909. Will go on leave of absence about January 5, 1920 and will retire as a Major at end of leave. Summary of service:

GREAT CREDIT DUE TOWN OF RYE.

The town of Rye certainly deserves much credit for the monument and memorial tablet it has erected to its men who have been in the service. It shows the enterprise of its townspeople as well as the loyalty to those who gave their services to their country.

Portsmouth is proud of its neighboring town which not only is a most picturesque and interesting village, but its natural beauties by any town in the state. The town of Rye covers a large amount of territory, and in all sections a visitor is always impressed with the neat appearance of the farms and the houses thereon and the general prosperity and thrift of its people.

Settled early in the seventeenth century by a small band of Englishmen, Rye has steadily grown and is one of the most popular and fashionable summer resorts on the New England coast today, some of the most prominent people in the country making it their winter home. The town has been free from debt for many years and has always levied one of the one of the lowest rates of taxation of any town in the state. Formerly the inhabitants were chiefly farmers, or fishermen, but today men in all trades and occupations are proud to call Rye their home. Many are the people who have been attracted to this town for a brief stay in the summer, and continue to repeat their visit year after year. Others, whose occupations lie outside the town limits, have built themselves homes here and reside through the whole year, so invigorating and healthful do they find the atmosphere of the place and the breezes from the ocean.

Rye maintains four schools, two churches and a large town hall, the latter being open nearly every evening in the winter for some social gathering or entertainment. An artistic library has been built within a few years, being the gift of the late Mrs. Mary Rand, this containing a variety of books and is generally patronized. The Yacht Club Hotel situated on the southern end of Rye Beach, has for years been one of the leading hotels of the Northern New England coast. The town has a number of clubs and organizations, the most prominent being the Orange and White Order of American Mechanics.

Not only have the men of this town responded nobly to the call in all our wars, but many girls and boys educated here have gone forth in all the walks of life to places of prominence and usefulness in important affairs of the country. May the people of Rye continue to be progressive, public spirited and ambitious in the future as in the past that the town may ever enjoy the reputation of representing all that is good and noble in Americanism.

Ernest Brown, a fisherman, when the vessel he was on, the "Gander," had a hole torn in its bottom on the Plymouth Roads, wrapped himself in sails and old clothes and forced his body, to the wall, into the hole, stopping the leak for four hours while the boat was being towed into a harbor.

CLAIMS MAN IS POLYGAMIST

Former Wife Accuses Pittsfield Man.

Pittsfield, Jan. 17.—George A. Blanchett, 38 years old, formerly of Manchester, N. H., and who gives his occupation as a broker, was arrested last night at his boarding house, 15 Appleton avenue, on the charge of polygamy on complaint of Mary P. Blanchett of Manchester, who claims to be his legal wife, although Blanchett, the police say, claims that he was legally separated from her and married Katherine G. Crane, with whom he has been living in this city.

The Crane woman was arrested at the same time on the charge of misconduct. A similar charge is placed against Blanchett also. Blanchett told the police that his wife got a separation from him in the Probate Court in Manchester, N. H., and that an attorney in Los Angeles, Cal., advised him he was legally entitled to marry again, and that the old Mary Katherine G. Crane in July, 1915, in Los Angeles. The couple have been living for about six months in Pittsfield. Blanchett furnished $1000 bail and the woman was released on her personal recognizance.

The Manchester woman told that she was married to Blanchett 18 years ago, and that they have a son 17 years of age. She arrived in Pittsfield yesterday with Attorney Doyle of Manchester, and Blanchett was arrested within a few hours after the arrival.

INJUNCTION ASKED AGAINST SALE OF PAPERS

Attorneys from this city appeared before Judge Sawyer in the Superior court at Exeter on Friday afternoon, with petitions for injunction against the Boston American.

Attorney Samuel W. Emery petitioned the court for an injunction restraining the Portsmouth police and everybody else from interfering with the sale or distribution of the Boston American in this city. He cited to the court that the papers were being seized by the local police on warrants issued by John L. Mitchell attorney for Mayor Albert Hildon.

Attorney J. L. Mitchell appeared for Governor Bartlett, Mayor Hildon, and the Allied Theatre companies, and asked that the court grant an injunction restraining the sale or distribution of the Boston American in the state of New Hampshire, on the ground that it was alleged that they had threatened to print alleged libelous matter against the petitioners. Judge Sawyer after hearing both attorneys, stated that he would give a decision on Monday morning.

Friday the police acting upon warrants issued by Attorney John L. Mitchell seized all of the different editions of the Boston American that came into this city, and as a result there were none offered for sale. Some of the papers were hauled to the police station and others left in the baggage room at the railroad station.

PRESENT PLAY AT ARMY AND NAVY HOME

A pleasing entertainment was given at the Army and Navy building Friday evening before a good sized audience when the little play "Johnnie's New Suit," was presented by local young people, also a folk dance, in which a group of eight misses took part.

The part of "Johnnie" was well taken by Vernie Tibbetts. While Vera Mitchell and Virginia Holmes also took leading parts. Recitations by several school boys added to the interest and after the play a solo dance was gracefully given by Miss Zyltha Woods, Miss Delta Ward presiding at the piano.

The Italian dance, Tarantelle, was given by eight young misses, who wore red and yellow costumes and was especially well done. Those who participated were the Misses Theresa Paul, Marie Polay, Anna Cullinan, Francis Gonyer, Marie Cullen, Nina Trueman, Emma Delbridge, Florence Garland, Miss Dorothy Cotton presided at the piano and the remainder of the evening was passed in dancing.

Advances by War Finance Corporation

Announcement has been made that the War Finance Corporation, one of its fund created for that purpose, has advanced, or is about to advance, seventeen million dollars to American exporters who are selling machinery abroad. Announcement of further loans by the Corporation is expected, though it is not certain whether the policy now initiated will be continued indefinitely, or whether it will be limited to the time when a sufficient number of Edge Law, or similar organizations, will have been formed and will be functioning satisfactorily.

These show that during the year 1919, in the principal states of the Union, charters were obtained for corporations with an authorized capitalization of more than 12 1/2 billion dollars, an increase of 111 percent over the corresponding figure for 1918, and well over three times the figure for 1917, the year of the incorporation of the United States Steel Corporation. To be sure, the figures are of authorized capitalization only, not capital issues, and they include reorganizations

INTERESTING FORECASTS FOR BUSINESS

N. Y. Financial House Predicts Busy Times.

The January 15 issue of "American Goods and Foreign Markets," the semi-monthly publication of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York devoted to foreign trade, says that "the prospects at the beginning of the new year in this country are all for sustained industrial activity, and for continued demands for capital on a large scale. The new records of turnover made last year and the shortage of both consumption and capital goods which still obtains seem clearly to indicate that the present condition of large volumes of domestic and foreign unfilled orders will hold over for some time." Continuing, the bulletin says: "Foreign trade statistics show that in all probability the value of the total exports for the year 1919 reached $11 billion dollars; that of total imports, $10 billion, or the $1 billion dollars of exports, those to Europe accounted for more than 5 billion, or nearly two-thirds; of the 4 billion of imports, less than $800 million, or one-fifth, came from Europe. Opinion is general that the year 1920 will see a marked reduction in exports and an increase in imports. The latter will be influenced chiefly perhaps, by the degree of improvement that is effected in European industry; the former by the same factor, by conditions in the foreign exchange market, by the amount of foreign metal aid extended to our European customers, and, not least, by the character of the service rendered by our exporters, and the character and prices of their goods. The time is fast approaching when, with normal conditions of international commercial competition, American goods must, as of old, sell strictly on their merits, and not because buyers must have them at almost any cost; in other words, when a buyer's market will replace a seller's market."

Significant Foreign Trade Statistics

"Of peculiar interest, as emphasizing the needs of Europe for our goods, and her ability to continue taking them are certain November foreign trade statistics. The total exports for that month exceeded in value those of October by 109 millions; but this increase was more than accounted for by an increase of 113 millions in the value of the exports of "made materials for use in manufacturing." The latter amounted to 230 millions out of a total of 710 millions for all exports, or more than 31 per cent, whereas in the preceding ten months of 1919 the value of such raw materials was only 17 3/4 per cent of the total. Just so far as Europe is able, or is enabled to increase her purchases of this class of our goods, she will be in a good way to restore her industry to normal conditions and bring about the all important increase in her exports of manufactures that is indispensable to her economic salvation. Imports from Europe during November were valued at 110 millions, as against 90 millions for October, 1919, and only 20 millions for November, 1918. Gains in imports from all the important former belligerent nations were registered. These statistics and other evidences afford reasons for distinct hopefulness in regard to the European situation.

PROPOSE NATIONAL GOLF COURSE

(By Associated Press)

New York, Jan. 16.—A national permanent golf course over which the more important championship tournaments shall be played annually has frequently been proposed by both American and English enthusiasts. This proposition has aroused much favorable and unfavorable comment; opinion, apparently being sharply divided on the feasibility of the plan. It has been pointed out that such a course would standardize championship play and make it possible to compare the form and ability of the various winners, semi-finalists and others in different years, thus furnishing a basis for accurate comparisons.

Opponents of the scheme take the stand that unless certain drastic restrictions and conditions were imposed a few players would greatly benefit owing to their being residents near the course. It is also held that in no other sport is a perpetual right given of a national championship although it is admitted that in baseball, tennis, track athletics and similar contests the competition surfaces far more standardized than in golf.

There are still other angles to be considered and even the conservative British golfers are becoming more interested each succeeding year in the proposition for a national course. J. H. Taylor has revived this suggestion as it is well known that many of the clubs are becoming weary at having their links overrun for a fortnight or more whenever a championship is for any of their courses. On these occasions hundreds of players hang up the links for the short holes, near the fairways, no matter how puny they may be in replacing divots, and assault the bunkers. The players, however, present a less serious problem than do the masses of spectators, the masses of whom have little or no regard for the damage they cause by climbing up and down the bunkers and swarming over the putting greens. In addition to the trouble of organizing these meets and the expense of the general use of the links for play by the members for a couple of weeks at least, the club has to spend in many instances hundreds of dollars in repairing and renovating the links after such stellar invasions of its property.

In view of the possibility of en-ties from the U. S. the leading American golfer will be interested in the latest reports from Kent, Eng., where the Deal Golf Club's course is situated, which are to the effect that it is doubtful if the famous links can be made playable in time for the 1920 British open championship next spring. Soon after the outbreak of the war in 1915 the British military authorities converted part of this course into a shooting range. Six holes of the links were commandeered by the government officials who quickly changed the fairways, greens, hazards and trees into a chaotic area of well-trampled confusion.

When the Deal club regained possession of its property recently, part of the course was in an appalling condition, the grass being waist high in places and the trees about one-third of the links totally obliterated. The work of renovation was begun immediately and is daily being hurried to the limit of all the labor and other help available.

The Deal course has enjoyed an enviable reputation for many years only one fault being found with its original construction. This was due to the fact that the first nine holes followed on almost into a straight line and those on the incoming trip were similarly laid out. As a result it often happened that the players had the wind against them all one way and with them over the other half of the links.

GLOUCESTER TIES COUNT AND THEN WINS

Glooucester, Jan. 16.—One of the best basketball games which ever took place in this section was played here tonight, with the Gloucester A. A. and the Newport, R. I. teams as the factors. In the last five minutes of play in the first period the home aggregation came with a rush and when the half ended Newport was leading 18 to 16. At the end of the second and in the five minutes overtime Gloucester scored five points, while their opponents totaled two points.

Aches and Pains of Rheumatism Sometimes Almost Unbearable

There are weather conditions that make rheumatism worse. They are not the same in the cases of all persons. Some victims of this disease suffer more in dry warm weather than in moist cold weather, but all suffer more or less all the time.

The cause of rheumatism is an excess of uric acid in the blood, affecting the muscles and joints. Hence the blood must have attention for permanent results in the treatment of this disease.

ter of the falling for the first nine rounds. He jabbed and hooked Muggsy and shot the right to the jaw a few times.

When the bell sounded for the 10th round Muggsy rushed from his corner and catching McMenimen off his guard, shot one of his rights to the jaw that sent the Cambridge man to the mat. McMenimen was up quickly and landed some more hard blows but Muggsy put him down two more times before the round ended.

It looked like curtains for McMenimen in the next session. He was sent to the mat twice and was in a bad way when the bell sounded. In the last session Muggsy ran into a left and he went down with a thud, but got up and gave McMenimen a hard battle until the round ended.

PROPOSE ATHLETIC BAN ON SPECIALS IN N. E. COLLEGES

At the time of the N. E. I. C. A. A. run at Franklin Park, Boston this fall, there was considerable discussion as to the eligibility of men. New Hampshire State College raised a question in regard to the eligibility of a man taking a two year course. A number of the colleges in the association have similar courses. In some institutions a man may register for a two year course on some special subject without graduating from high school. The majority of colleges do not allow such a man to compete in athletics against another college.

The matter was placed before the executive committee to decide. The point was not covered clearly in the constitution. However, the executive committee decided that Payne, or in fact any man taking a two year course was ineligible for any contest conducted by the N. E. I. C. A. A.

The executive committee interpreted the rules to mean that a man must be taking a regular four year course leading to a degree. It was readily seen that the constitution should be amended to prevent similar difficulties in the future. Wayland D. Tappan of the advisory committee has drawn up the following proposed amendment:

Article 9, section two, to be amended by the addition of the following: "No special student shall be eligible to represent his college or university during his first year as a special student. Students in two year courses, no-called, or in other abbreviated courses, which do not lead to a degree or do not demand the usual entrance requirements shall not be allowed to compete in meetings of this association."

The first part of the amendment preventing special students from competing during the first year of a special course is one of the faculty rules at the University of Maine. This would prevent the possibility of a man transferring from one college to another, registering as a special student, and immediately competing in athletics for his new alma mater. This sort of practice is undesirable. It may be seen that the special student would be ineligible to represent the college for a year. This would cover the above point definitely.—Portland Express.

PORTLAND K. C. ARE A FAST TEAM

The basketball fans will get plenty of action at Freeman's hall this evening, when the Portsmouth professional team will meet the Portland K. C., five one of the fastest teams in Maine. The biggest crowd of the season is expected to witness the game.

The game will be under professional rules and this assures a much faster game with more action. The local team which has been practicing since the game on Jan. 8, have shown a big improvement in their team work and under the coaching of Henry Cragen their manager, they have improved wonderfully. They will also be greatly strengthened by Walter Costello of Boston, one of the crack professional basketball players of New England. Manager Cragen will start his men as follows:

Silva and Walte forwards, Hicks center and Badger and Costello guards. Jack Timmons will referee the match and this means that there will be no delays and plenty of action. Dancing will follow the game as in the olden days.

In addition to the big game there will be a game between the girls' team of the High school and the Women's Legion team, which is the last years Yeomen (P) team. They will play between the periods so that there will be continuous basketball. The High school team have played more than the Legion team and are in better shape for the game, but the Legion team is older and have advantage in size and experience.

FEED THE BIRDS

If you want to help save the trees, don't forget to feed the birds. The fall of snow has covered up their supply of food in the form of weed seeds so throw out some crumbs, hang up a piece of suet in the trees or scatter hay chaff on the snow and see how soon you will have callers. One little bird will kill and destroy millions of insects which add the trial to the farmer and fruit grower.
